

Emigrants Get Large Share of J.D.C. Money In '39, Figures Show

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK.—The Joint Distribution Committee appropriated $3,923,700 in 1939 for Jewish relief in more than 50 countries, according to the J. D. C. annual report, marking completion of 25 years of activity on the part of the major American agency for aid to distressed Jews overseas.

Joseph C. Hyman, in his report as executive vice-chairman, said pledged income of the J. D. C., however, amounted to only $8,150,000 as its share of the United Jewish Appeal.

In his resume of services rendered during the first six months of 1940, Hyman declared the J. D. C. appropriated $4,477,500 for that period.

Analyzed on a functional basis, the largest expenditure during 1939 was $3,251,900 for relief work among refugees. An additional $2,006,800 was expended for emigration service to refugees permitted to enter Palestine, Latin American countries and other overseas lands for permanent settlement. Emergency assistance for others than refugees received grants totalling $1,000,000 while other large sums were expended for vocational training, medical aid, child care and economic assistance.

Wagg, who has just returned from the Dominican Republic, said the Sosua colonization project "is final proof that the canard that Jews do not make good farmers is false." Within six months the colonists, now numbering nearly 60, have placed 600 acres under cultivation, he said.

Thousands Throng Streets As V. Jabotinsky Buried Tuesday On Long Island

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK.—Funeral services for Vladimir Jabotinsky were held Tuesday with 25,000 people jamming the streets of New York's lower East Side to pay tribute to the Zionist leader and organizer of the New Zionist Organization.

Jabotinsky died of coronary thrombosis shortly before midnight last Saturday night at Camp Betar near Hunter, N. Y. He was 59 years old, and is survived by his wife and a son, Eri.

Death occurred a few hours after Jabotinsky had reviewed a parade of the campers, members of the Zionist-Revisionist youth organization known as Brith Trumpeldor. The Zionist leader had come to the camp to spend the week-end.

Jabotinsky's body was temporarily interred in a three-ton concrete-bronze vault at the New Montefiore Cemetery, Farmingdale, L. I. After the war is over it will be sent to Palestine, for reburial in the land he fought for.

Thousands filled the street outside the Gramercy Funeral Chapel, while the services were going on. Some of them had been there all night. Inside the chapel, 750 people attended the simple orthodox service conducted by Rabbi Morris N. Rose of Temple Sinai, Brooklyn. There were no eulogies, following the precedent set at the funeral in 1904 of Theodore Herzl, founder of modern Zionism.

Notables Attend Funeral

Representatives of the British, Czechoslovakian and Polish Governments attended the services, in addition to Prof. Benjamin Akzin, Eliahu Ben-Horin and other W. Z. O. leaders; Edward I. Kaufmann, president of the Zionist Organization of America; Colonel John Henry Patterson, commander of the 1917 Jewish Legions in Palestine; Stanley Howe, secretary to Mayor LaGuardia; Prof. James G. MacDonald, Dr. Hirsch J. Gordon, American Palestine Jewish Legion Commander; and John Gunther, the author.

After the services, a funeral procession proceeded slowly up Second Avenue to Fourteenth Street and down to East Houston Street, where a thousand people boarded buses and private cars for the cemetery.

Jewish theatres and homes for the aged were draped in black, and the sidewalks were crowded with mourners. When the procession passed the funeral chapel for the second time, it halted briefly while the cantors' Association sang "El Mole Rachamim." Thousands of bystanders joined in the singing when the ceremony was concluded with the singing of "Hatikvah."

Rites East Side's Largest

As the procession proceeded south from the Chapel, it was led by Max Greenberg, who lost a leg while fighting by Jabotinsky's side in Palestine.

Police Inspector John D. Martino said the funeral was "one of the largest in the history of the East Side," and the "largest with a military background."

In the procession were delegations from Young Israel, Brith Trumpeldor, the Jewish War Veterans, the American Friends of a Jewish Palestine and the American Palestine Jewish Legion. Many of the younger marchers had tears in their eyes as the sorrowful throngs moved down Second Avenue.

At the cemetery they were joined by several hundred youngsters from the Betar Camp in Hunter, N. Y., where Jabotinsky died Saturday night. He was buried in the Max Nordau Circle plot.

Messages of condolence came from local Jewish leaders, and also from Jewish bodies in Canada and Argentina, as well as from such non-Jews as Polish Ambassador Count Jerzy Potocki and Consul-General Sylvester Gruszka.

Was Man Without Country

Jabotinsky, although Russian-born, was technically a "man without a country." Usually, when asked his nationality, he described himself as "The Wandering Jew." He travelled on a Nansen passport. He was born in Odessa, Russia, Oct. 18, 1880, and was educated in Russia, Italy and Switzerland. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in Russia, but never practiced law, choosing instead to follow a career as a writer, orator and Zionist leader.

But it was as a Zionist leader and organizer of the Jewish Legion, which helped Allenby wrest Palestine from Turkey in the World War, that Jabotinsky gained his greatest measure of fame. He organized the Legion in 1916 and enlisted in it as a private, later earning promotion to the rank of lieutenant.

Jabotinsky was decorated for his services with the Legion, and remained in Palestine after the war ended. Together with other demobilized Legionnaires he organized a self-defense corps to cope with threatening Arab violence and, after the Jerusalem outbreaks of 1920, he was sentenced to 15 years penal servitude. Protests in many parts of the world, which were echoed in the House of Commons, resulted in quashing of the sentence after he had served three and a half months of it.

This and That

The Kirshbaum Day Camp News had a "Trotting Poll" last week and two of the questions should make Gallup begin to worry about competition too. The first question, addressed to boys only, inquires: "Do you like the blond, brunette or redhead type? Who do you think is the best looking member of the Day Camp? Then the girls are asked: "Do you like the sports boy type or the handsome sissy type? Who do you think is the best looking boy in the Day Camp?"

Results show that Betty Sutherland led in the number of votes for the best looking member of the camp and Isaac Nisenbaum was adjudged the best looking boy. Also in the voting on blonds versus brunettes versus redheads, the brunettes won. There may be some morals attached to the above decisions, but we haven't time or intelligence to figure it out, so we'll leave you to make your own deductions.

Remember the discolored eye we told you about that adorned the noble visage of Dr. Nathan Hantman following that automobile mishap. Well, it seems that Dame Misfortune is not satisfied yet. Nate was out at Speedway playing his regular Sunday morning eighteen holes and stepped up to the No. 1 tee for his first swat of the day. Wham! He hit the ball and did it travel! But poor Nate, in expending all that prodigious force, pulled a ligament in his back and was in bed for three days, and definitely off of the golf course for at least a month.

Talking about the injured list, there's Dr. Bernard Hyman, who returned from that trip east with his left leg swathed in bandages, the result of too much sunburn. Bernie said his ankle was swollen to twice its size, but by the time I saw it only the swathes on his leg and the peeling skin were clues to his tilt with Old Sol. Then there's Ed Cohn, who won't see this because he, Doug Brown and Meyer Efrogmson are at Lake George in the Adirondacks for their vacation. Ed has a trick wrist that pulls out of place every summer just about the time he's ready to break a hundred. I don't know about the score, but I do know that Ed's wrist slipped out of place just before the trio went east.

What do you think this is, a newspaper or a history book? Seymour Pinkus, who writes "People and Places" for The Post every other week, dropped us a note and said not to mention anything about the conclave last week-end at Lake Wawasee because he wanted to write it up in his column next week. Well, I wasn't there, so I guess I'll have to accede to his wishes, but don't anyone tell the editor about it.

Pretty soon there'll be a Burt Kohn tradition in this city. Have you ever driven up town with Mr. Kohn. Invariably on the most crowded streets at the busiest hours, regardless of whether his destination is Blocks or Ayres, or any other downtown point, he'll drive his car right up to the door, and there, mirabile dictu, will be a parking spot. We normal human beings see a parking space three blocks from our destination and count ourselves lucky as we grab it. But not Burt. He'll see a parking space just three or four doors from where he wants to go and pass it up with all the blase of the man who knows that exactly where he wants to go, there he'll find a spot reserved for him. And there it is, too, darn it.

mous tribute of Palestine Jewry to Vladimir Jabotinsky, leader of the New Zionist Organization, organizer of the Palestine Jewish Legion during the last war and writer, who died near New York City late Saturday night.

Eri Jabotinsky, only son of the Zionist leader, was released from Acre prison, where he was serving a one-year term for aiding illegal Jewish immigration, and was observing the seven-day period of mourning required by Jewish law at the home of an aunt in Haifa. His release was brought about by intervention of James S. McPherson, Government Chief Secretary, following news of Jabotinsky's death.

To Grieve For Year

The central committee of the Palestine N. Z. O. decided to observe a year's mourning, to light a "Ner Tomid" (Eternal Flame) in his memory and to keep the president's chair vacant at all future meetings. The Zionist-Revisionist party proclaimed a work stoppage.

The Palestine Jewish National Council called a special meeting of mourning. A meeting of the Jewish Agency Executive was also held at which Isaac Gruenbaum delivered a eulogy and announced that a cablegram of condolence had been sent to Jabotinsky's widow in London.

In Tel Aviv, black flags were flown from public buildings. The Municipal Council cabled the N. Z. O. in London that "world Jewry and Zionism are mourning the irreparable loss." The Council proclaimed an official day of mourning for Tuesday, when the funeral was held in New York. The Habima Theater in Tel Aviv interrupted a performance to pay tribute to Jabotinsky as a playwright.

The Nathania Town Council assembled for a meeting of mourning and heard a eulogy by Mayor Oved Ben-Ami. Places of entertainment were closed and a work stoppage was held this morning.

Chief Rabbi Attends Services

Services were held at Yeshuron Synagogue with Chief Rabbi Isaac Herzog attending.

At a meeting of the Group "B" General Zionists, Joshua Suprassky suggested the transfer of Jabotinsky's remains to Palestine—from where he had been exiled in 1920. The World Mizrahi Central Committee announced that it mourned the Zionist leader as "an outstanding personality and one of the fighters for Jewish redemption and freedom."

How Captain Extorted Money From Refugees Told

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LISBON.—The terrifying cruise of 50 refugees aboard the freighter Dora was at an end following their debarkation from the "hell ship" in whose hold they had been virtually imprisoned since July 2 when the craft left the French port of Certe, near Bordeaux.

The sight of these refugees, emaciated from weeks of semi-starvation, staggering across the dock, was an unforgettable one for this correspondent and other persons who witnessed their landing. Portuguese sailors wept unashamedly as the pitiful group of men, women and children, passed by, enroute to the quarantine center at Caxias, near here.

The 2,000-ton Dora, flying the Panamanian flag, had been anchored at Lisbon for a month pending an investigation by the authorities, who refused at first to grant debarkation permits. The captain, a Greek gangster, had refused to proceed to Casablanca, French Morocco, where the refugees were unable to furnish additional fare he demanded. The captain formerly illicitly transported refugees to Tel Aviv and was known to have drowned a number of refugees refused entry to Palestine.

The refugees include a three-month old infant, twelve children under seven and 14 women. One woman was so ill from the ordeal that she had to be hospitalized immediately on landing. The refugees, most of whom are Jews from France, Belgium and the Netherlands, along with some White Russian emigres, will be cared for by the Portuguese Jewish Refugee Aid Committee. The refugees include the banker Haim Bernstein and members of his family and the Polish banker Sokolow, a resident of Belgium for 30 years.

Although the Dora was permitted to depart after the debarkation, the Jewish Refugee Aid Committee intends to prosecute the captain in Maritime Court. The Committee is now conferring with the police on plans to send the refugees to Australia or Shanghai via Portuguese South Africa aboard a Portuguese ship. Members of the Committee believe that such an arrangement will be carried out within a month.

Meanwhile, every possible aid is being given the charges of the Committee. After spending four days at quarantine, where their health papers will be inspected, they will be given the freedom of the country until the date of their departure. Seventeen of them landed without any baggage or money.

This was the first trip to Lisbon by the Greek captain, who recently shifted his "trade" to French Moroccan ports. He charged the refugees a total of 2,000,000 Belgian francs for the voyage, adding to that 150 dollars for each day spent in port.

WAR VETS PLAN FOR LARGE PICNIC

Games, Refreshments Program For Affair; Broad Ripple Scene

One of the largest crowds in the history of Jewish War Veteran picnics was predicted for the 1940 picnic, set this year for next Sunday, Aug. 18, at the Broad Ripple Park, by Paul Scharffin, Indianapolis Post commander, as preparations for the affair were nearing completion this week.

Admission to the picnic is free, it was announced.

On the program are games, prizes and refreshments, with the proceeds going for presentation of American flags to various organizations and other Americanization work.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the post, whose president is Mrs. M. D. Barnett, is co-sponsor of the picnic. Moi Olshewitz, Saul Koby and George Michaels are general picnic co-chairmen.

In announcing that plans had already been completed, Mr. Scharffin said that the Midway of the park has been gaily decorated and arrangements are being made to handle the tremendous crowd that always supports the Jewish War Veterans and its Auxiliary in their many activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jacobs and son have returned from a northern lake trip.

Speaks on

INTOLERANCE

A LADY accuses me of something which never was any sin of mine. I have been guilty of much but never of self-pity. Goldie Dichner of 3269 North New Jersey street, Indianapolis, accuses me of this.

In the Yom Kippur prayers we ask forgiveness for a variety of sins but self-pity is not one of them. I would add a line to the confessions: "For the sin of pitying ourselves, forgive us."

The lady says I had several columns of self-pity in the piece about Mr. Bungle's boarding farm. This is the farm in the Catskills that I passed on my recent vacation tour. In front of it stood a sign: "For Christian Tourists."

She seems to think I was pitying myself because Mr. Bungle didn't want me, a Jew. It hurts me the more to be accused of self-pity since through several columns I was really laughing at Mr. Bungle instead of weeping for myself. Nor was I even angry; I never did consider social discrimination anything to get excited about.

Then the lady takes up other matters on which I find myself agreeing with her.

She says: "One would suppose the Jewish people are innocent of ever having put up such signs by signboard, word or deed. You can probably remember several half-Jewish or perhaps non-Jewish people who attempted to make themselves a part of the Jewish community. Do you remember what happened to them for paying us the compliment? Were they welcomed with eager arms? You and I know better."

"We would like to be accepted by others but are far from ready to do as much for them. Where do we get off asking for more than we give?"

OF COURSE, the answer is that since we are human beings we suffer from all the faults of the human race and intolerance is one of them. When in good time human nature comes to perfection we, too, shall embrace all the brethren, of whatever faith or color, and respect them.

Yet a frank confession of intolerance should prepare us for the happy day of brotherhood. The fact is that we are not even tolerant among ourselves. One group puts up signs against the other.

One hears of country clubs that will not have people who came out of Orthodox origin from East European parentage. During the depression when new members were badly needed, some of the clubs relaxed enough to tolerate a few people who were that unfortunate in their grandfathers or great-grandfathers. But, as I hear, these people haven't felt at all happy in their club-life. All around they discover hostile glances that as much as say to them: "How did you get in here? You, whose grandfather came over on a ship as late as 1880?"

Then there is the religious intolerance that is impatient with the Orthodox for being that way. There is a school of Jewish intolerance whose opinion it is if it weren't for the Orthodox everything would be all right with Jews. If they'd only give up being kosher and all that, nobody would find any fault with Jews!

On the other side, intransigent Orthodox Jews believe that they alone among Jews have communication with God and that the Holy One, blessed be He, regards Reform Jews as no more than Goyim. They will not be allowed to sit at the right hand of God when the time comes.

In fact, Orthodox intolerance sometimes extends to other Orthodox Jews who do not weigh up to the full measure of Orthodoxy. I know of a certain city in which one Orthodox rabbi would as soon be seen in St. Patrick's Cathedral as to enter the synagogue of another Orthodox rabbi in the same city. In that synagogue women are allowed to sit on the same floor level with the men, though in a separate section, contrary to the Orthodox rule which requires that women be concealed in a balcony. This, it appears, makes it a synagogue that is profane in the eyes of the other rabbi and of God.

[I have heard, however, that God has been more tolerant about this than the rabbi. God has prospered the synagogue which the rabbi scorns. It is paying off its debt regularly.]

I THINK we should prepare for the happy day of universal tolerance by some practice of tolerance among ourselves. Jews who have suffered most from intolerance should be the first to lead the way to millenium when brother will embrace brother without a knife to stick in his back.

Then, having had some experience of tolerance toward each other, we may know how to be tolerant in all other relations.

The other day I met one whom I shall call Sam which is, indeed, his name. Sam at once upbraided me: "What's getting into you, Segal?"

"What have I done now?"

"What have you done? All you did was to heap flowers at the feet of a convert from Judaism."

He meant a certain piece I had written in my daily newspaper column. In this I had paid tribute to a doctor who had just died. He was a refugee from Germany. I had written that he, far along in his sixties, had been uprooted from his native soil, despite the merits of his character, his skill as a physician, the good name he had earned. He had been judged and condemned for his blood stream. He had been born a Jew who in his youth was converted to Catholicism.

"Yes," Sam said, "you gave your blessing to this convert who, nevertheless, had to suffer the fate of all Jews. You should have pointed out that ironic fact."

Well, Sam, I replied, you are angry because this man dropped Judaism and took up another faith. But how well have you yourself done by Judaism? Tell me that. You must confess that you are just one of those Jews who feel very Jewish at the moment you have been hurt. This doctor at least frankly abandoned the faith. You yourself keep it only as one of the gears in your defense mechanism. What else does Judaism mean to you. Aw, Sam, since we are so weak ourselves, let's be tolerant of other weaklings.

He snorted and went on: "You talk like a rabbi," he said.

Henry Montor says, Defense of the Jewish Position Determined By Social and Economic Views.—That Jews in America ought to be united in a common defense of their interests is admitted by all who have seen the destructive effect of disunity in Europe; by all except those who think that anti-Semitism is a plague which visits only certain types of Jews, perhaps only those who wear beards or have accents or dress ostentatiously or use the wrong cutlery or have the temerity to express their social and economic convictions publicly.

Without a real unity among American Jews, defensive measures on their behalf are, at best, conflicting; at worst, mutually cancelling. At the present time, defense of the Jewish position is determined by the social and economic views of the particular group of people administering the program, instead of being guided by the actual physical safety requirements of all Jews regardless of their ideologies.

Without unity, without a common recognition that anti-Semitism is a potent force which may be as destructive to the Jew in America as in any other land, and without the abandonment of social and political criteria by which to plan the defense of the Jews in America, it does not seem possible that American Jews can do anything to meet the tide which is sweeping toward them from the east.

There may still be Jews who think that Hitler can be pacified and appeased. But, in the main, Jews are convinced that the outcome of the war has a direct bearing on their destiny. A strange notion is prevalent that Jews should not indicate their interest in that war. Proponents of the "quiet" principle seem to think that there is a relationship between what Jews think and say and what other Americans think and say about the war. In the first place, it is those who label themselves most truculently as "Americans" who are usually the ones to deny Jews the fundamental American right that every citizen has to express his opinion. There is no reason why Henry Morgenthau does not have an equal right with Frank Knox to say publicly, continuously and staunchly that he would like Great Britain to win.

There's No Parking Worry for Trolley Or Bus Passengers

Did you ever drive your auto downtown and waste several minutes vainly looking for parking space which you didn't find? Of course you have! And, like many others, you have finally given up in disgust and headed for the nearest parking lot, the cost of which far exceeded trolley or bus fare.

In fact, the above is the daily experience of hundreds of motorists who drive into the congested areas on business, shopping or pleasure jaunts in the vain hope that they will find a place to park. They seldom do, but if so it happens only after a nerve wracking and energy taking search which leaves them exhausted and exasperated.

On the other hand, however, there are thousands of Indianapolis motorists who have found that by leaving their autos behind and using the convenient bus and trolley service always near at hand, they can forget parking worries, enjoy the trip downtown, and actually save considerable money while doing it.

There need be no time wasted if you ride the trolleys and buses. Your wait at the curb will be the very minimum if you'll just call the Indianapolis Railways Service Department, Riley 1571, and ask when the next trolley or bus passes your corner.

Croll Joins Forces

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—Mayor David Croll of Windsor, Ontario, arrived in England as a private in the Second Division of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Croll, who at one time was Labor Minister in the Ontario Cabinet, was on sentry duty on the promenade deck of the troop ship that brought the Canadian division here.

Gamma Alpha Beta Back From Manitou

The Gamma Alpha Beta Fraternity has returned home after vacationing at Lake Manitou. The members on the trip were Sidney Jaffe, Sanford Rothschild, Sidney Tuchman, Morris Mitchell, Abe Schuchman, Gerald Paul and James Schwartz, and two guests, Joe Tuchman and Conrad Pallman.

While at the lake, a tennis tournament was held and the victor, Morris Mitchell, received a beautiful wallet after defeating Sanford Rothschild in the final matches. Sidney Jaffe was awarded a trophy for showing great skill in row-boating.

WAR ECHOES—Recently revived and referring to some of Adolf's categorical imperatives is the old gag: "He's giving the world twenty-four hours to get out." ... Canada's air corps is doing its recruiting with posters proclaiming: "Why Walk to Berlin? Join the Canadian Flying Corps." ... If you want to know how the Italian people really feel about their partnership with Hitler, just remember that the circulation of the Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, which used to be 120,000 when the editors were allowed to criticize Adolf, has fallen to about 30,000 since the censors clamped down on the paper. ... Don't believe your eyes when you see photos of large crowds of Frenchmen raising their hands in the Nazi salute. The way such pictures are gotten is this: A band or other attraction is set up in a public square, and a crowd naturally gathers around. Then the band leader says: "All those who don't speak German will please raise their hands." Hundreds of hands go up—and the Nazi camera man does his stuff.

TRUE STORY—Adam Rosen, of the shipping agency, tells us of a group of German Jewish refugees who recently came to him to purchase transportation to Madagascar. Rosen, puzzled, asked why they should choose so tropical a country for a summer-time visit. "You don't understand," the spokesman of the group said, "we're not going there on a visit, we're going to settle there. For seven years now we've been on the move.

First from Berlin to Vienna, then to Prague, next to Antwerp, then to Paris, and now to this country. We had hoped to stay here, but when we read that the Nazis had announced that all Jews would eventually be transferred to Madagascar, we thought we'd better go there in comfortable accommodations now, instead of waiting another few years and having to go over in a crowded refugee ship."

LITERARY NEWS—You will remember that a year before Pierre van Paassen's "Days of Our Years" was published we told you that it would become an outstanding book. Now we tell you that Maurice Samuel's "The Great Hatred" will create a bigger sensation than Hermann Rauschning's "Revolution of Nihilism." Rauschning, by the way, is discovering that a Nazi record isn't the easiest thing in the world to live down. Notwithstanding his (Continued on page 7)

RENDEZVOUS

Once in a while fate plays kind tricks, too. Take for instance, the case of the refugee couple and their son who had been separated in emigrating from an overseas country. The couple arrived last week in New York by way of Canada. From Grand Central Terminal, where there was no one to meet them, they were directed to the HIAS offices at 425 Lafayette street. At the HIAS, they were walking disconsolately up and down the corridor, waiting to be interviewed and wondering the while what had happened to their son. That same morning, the British liner Britannic had pulled into New York. Among the passengers was a young man. From the pier he went to the HIAS. He, too, started walking up and down a corridor, waiting to be interviewed. The corridor was crowded with other refugees waiting their turn. Suddenly, the couple came face to face with the young man. He was their son.

WAR

There is one country in the Western Hemisphere that will not have to declare war with Germany if and when the occasion arises. . . . Because, technically, she is still at war with the Reich. . . . The war being the World War, in which that country participated against Germany. . . . When it was over, this particular nation failed to conclude a formal peace. . . . Although trade and diplomatic relations were resumed with the Reich and are still maintained today. . . . The country is Costa Rica.

HOST

In Vienna a Rothschild was host to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. . . . In Lisbon, their host up to the time they sailed for the Bahamas was the Espirito Santo family, wealthy bankers. . . . The family is of Jewish origin. . . . The name means Holy Ghost. . . . A name assumed by the family at the time of its conversion centuries ago. . . . Spanish Protestants have frequently agitated against use of the name by a banking family.

PRAYER

Scene was a union meeting. . . . Members of the union, in the baking industry, are 90 per cent Christian. . . . In the middle of the meeting one of the leaders arose and called on ten Jewish members to join in a Kaddish with a fellow-member. Explaining this request, the leader said, according to the newspaper PM: "Our brother here is a good Jew and wouldn't want to miss the prayer. On the other hand, he is a good union member and he didn't want to miss the meeting." . . . After the prayer, the meeting was resumed.

MISH-MASH

Can any Pittsburgher tell us who that much-publicized heiress is who was given the bum's rush when she proposed a toast to Hitler at a recent party in the Smoky City? . . . Our London operator informs us that there's a new note in matrimonial ads on that side of the Atlantic. Qualifications of prospective bridegrooms seeking brides and dowries now include "reserved occupation," which means that the man is in a job considered essential to the war effort and won't be torn away from his bride for military service. . . . Congrats to the New York Herald Tribune on its expose of Dr. Gerhart A. Westrick, Nazi business agent whose business in America is probably of the "monkey" variety. . . . And congrats to the same paper for its biting editorial on Mussolini's "Am I sick, am I tired?" demonstration for reporters on his fifty-seventh birthday. . . . Dr. Joshua Starr has left the research department of the American Jewish Congress to become executive secretary of the Conference on Jewish Relations. . . . Boris Smolar, chief European correspondent of the J. T. A., was in the New York office of the J. T. A. when a cable dated Bordeaux started coming in. The cable, signed Smolar, told of his arrival in Bordeaux. It was dated June 13, having taken more than six weeks in transit to New York. . . . The J. D. C., days after he had arrived in New York himself, received a similarly delayed cable from Morris C. Troper. . . . Carl Alpert of Boston and Bernie Postal of Washington have been named associate editors in the American Department of the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia, second volume of which is now being bound. . . . Did you notice that the theme song adopted for the new liner America is "God Bless America," which a Jewish boy named Irving Berlin wrote? . . . And did you read that snappy reply made in a letter to the New York Times, by Herbert Bayard Swope, to criticism by one Rev. Dr. Romig of the song as "mawkish" and "doggerel."

MORRIS HYKEN DIES

SOUTH BEND.—Morris Hyken, 75, died in Epworth hospital here Sunday. Surviving are a daughter, Sophia, of this city; a son, Sam, of Chicago, and a brother and sister in Russia.

Anna Simon has returned from a business trip to New York City.

STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL

two volumes exposing the philosophy of Nazism, he has so far not been able to obtain the affidavits necessary if he is to be admitted to this country. . . . If you want to know the real inside story about the collapse of France there are a couple of pieces you should watch out for. The first is by van Paassen, and will appear as an introduction to a book called "Beyond Tears." The other is an article by Henri de Kerrillis in the October issue of Redbook, in which the famous French editor will point out that if Georges Mandel had not been a Jew he would have become the prime minister of France in the emergency, and would have saved his country.

STAGE AND SCREEN—Charlie Chaplin was all set to postpone indefinitely the release of his film, "The Dictator," until the anonymous letter writers got busy. Now that he's receiving scores of threatening notes warning him against showing the film he has determined to bring it out in the early fall. Incidentally, Chaplin's closing monologue in this film marks a new high as the strongest anti-Hitler blast yet heard from Shadowland. . . . A picture you mustn't miss is "The Ramparts We Watch." It's a powerful exposition of American defense needs. . . . Sam Goldwyn has modified his idea of organizing a personal appearance tour of a group of the big Hollywood stars, the proceeds to go to the Red Cross. He is now planning a huge radio appeal by the stars. . . . Did you know that Erich Pommer, now a Hollywood producer, was responsible for many of the German film successes of the 1920's? . . . Don't be surprised if Broadway sees a play on legislative lobbies, from the pen of Clifford Odets, within the next season or two. . . . An aspirant to a Broadway career is Joan Fornay, formerly of Vienna. She's hoping to reach the Great White Way soon, now that she has completed a course in English dramatic art under Jane Manner, the famed coach. Miss Fornay just made her American debut in a summer theater presentation of a Noel Coward play.

ABOUT PEOPLE—It wasn't merely because of her aggressive anti-Nazi attitude that Mme. Genevieve Tabouis came to this country from France. The composition of her blood does not quite comply with the provisions of the Aryan laws. . . . The J. T. A.'s Jacob Landau is leaving for Latin America one of these days to study social and economic conditions down there. . . . We're happy to hear that Benny Goodman's operation, which removed the cause of his sciatica, was a complete success and that the maestro will soon be leading his band again.

Our Film Folk of HOLLYWOOD

By HELEN ZIGMOND

HOLLYWOOD—An unusual ceremony took place this week when 250 stretchers, donated by a group of movie people, were shipped to the British Red Cross. A minister and a rabbi blessed the stretchers and prayed they would not have to be used.

Harry Green, top-notch comedian of a decade ago, is today supervising magic sequences for "The Californian." A little of that wizard-stuff wouldn't be amiss in putting Harry back to his former glory.

Over at Warner's they're predicting that Muni's beards will be cut down to fit John Garfield. Muni—almost as permanent as the front gate—caused a minor tremble in the valley by walking out of the company with whom he worked for eight consecutive years. Reported reason: The art in "High Sierra" can only be written with a small "a"—a part cut short of Muni's talents.

A Lin-o-type: Most punishment meted out to an American film company in German-occupied territory seems to have fallen on Twentieth Century-Fox—a Gentile directed organization. "Four Sons" was their offense.

Clever quip of a localite: "Things change so fast these days that radio announcers should say: 'Slight pause for nation identification'."

Oscar Levant is not new to this flicker business. In 1929 he was a music arranger for Fox. . . . When their year's salary of $250,000 was divided between the Marxes, Chico got the extra penny. . . . Motion Picture Relief Fund contributed $100,000 to the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital as a Will Rogers Memorial which will sustain ten beds. . . . The Ralph Blums (Carmel Myers) are adopting a baby girl.

"Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment" item: British Ministry of Information issues two films, "Miss Gibbs Goes to the Door" and "A Call to Arms," instructing the populace on what to do in case of invasion.

Harpo, spending a fishing weekend at Catalina, was tactfully restrained from entering the swank hotel's dining room sans cravat. He rushed to his room, returned with a red and white polka dot scarf covering his offending Adam's apple. Later . . . exited . . . he pulled off the improvised neckwear . . . and the horrified waiter beheld the lower half of a pair of pajamas!

The mother of one of our readers likes to read out loud to her son, and often reads indiscriminately here and there from the paper, just picking out interesting items. On this occasion she was reading The Post, and came across the item several weeks ago about Dr. Ebner Blatt leaving for a trip to Samoa in the South Sea Islands. The reader thought it was unusual that Ebner would be going back to Samoa, since he had been there last year just before he opened his office here. The next day he ran into one of Ebner's friends and said how come Ebner's going back to Samoa. The friend was as much surprised as was the reader, and it wasn't until they had gotten hold of a copy of The Post that the mystery was solved. It seems that the reader's mother had taken the item from our column headed, "This Week in 1939."

It all started when I gently reprimanded the G. A. B. fraternity for sending in their publicity late. The reprimand was probably worth in the hundreds of dollars in the way of publicity, and now I am going to give them more and more publicity. Here's a letter from the club's new publicity agent. Some day I hope to be called prominent too (no offense, Julius).

My dear Mr. Cohen:

In the July 19th issue of The Post there was an interesting article in the "Editor's Chair" which concerned the G. A. B. Club. The G. A. B. Club is a new organization composed of young Jewish men between the ages of 16 and 19. Our club is known by its initials as the G. A. B. Club, but we are really a fraternity and our name is the Gamma Alpha Beta. The Gamma Alpha Beta was started in May, 1940, by eight young men, and the membership has now risen to twenty members, who are being ruled by a strong constitution, and also being backed by two men of prominence, Julius Salmon and Leonard Rothschild. We have a threefold program, social, athletic and cultural; and for a club of our age and size we are very active in all three.

We are swiftly rising to greater heights, and in due time we hope to be one of the most outstanding Jewish clubs in the city. In the future we hope to see publicity in The Post, but not like the insulting type which appeared in the "Editor's Chair."

Yours truly,

HARRIS SENTIR.

New publicity agent for the G. A. B. Club.

Headlines, News Items Need Explaining

IT MUST be becoming increasingly evident every day that such apparently harmless headlines as that appearing in The Indianapolis Star Thursday, "Nazi Paper Says Hitler Peace Will Mean Europe Cleared of Jews," are conditioning readers in just the way the Nazis wish—to begin to believe that such a wiping out of the Jews is desirable.

In this paper's opinion, a letter to the paper from a man like Louis J. Borinstein or Isidore Feibleman, stating that going with the Jews from Europe will be the trade unions, considerations of mercy, freedom of speech and belief and worship, and even freedom to live, would be salutary, and would be the mere exercising of democratic principles and ordinary common sense. The letter definitely need not be antagonistic, since certainly The Star meant no injury whatsoever. The letter should be explanatory.

Those rabbis and lay leaders whose theme song for the past few years has been that we must try to prevent at all odds the spreading of the belief that there is such a thing as a Jewish problem are akin to the man in the parable of the closing of the stable door after the horse has gone. The horse is gone. There is the belief and it is growing daily that there is a Jewish problem, and that belief is spreading here too, possibly because no General Jewish Council and even no local Jewish leadership is alert enough to be able to diagnose the situation and then courageous enough to attack it.

J. D. C. Report Shows Good Proportion Spent Constructively

THOSE who might criticize the Joint Distribution Committee because, as they charge, it is an organization dedicated solely to relief work and not interested in rehabilitation would do well to peruse the report released this week by Joseph C. Hyman, executive vice chairman of the J. D. C. Of the $8,923,700 spent for all causes by the organization during 1939, $2,366,600 was expended for emigration service to refugees permitted to enter Palestine, Latin American countries and other overseas lands for permanent settlement.

Definitely and as a matter of human obligation the J. D. C. must feed as many hungry as possible, whether these same mouths will have to be fed tomorrow and next year or not, which happens to be the point on which the J. D. C. has been most severely criticised. But the fact that almost 29 per cent of the funds spent can be classified in a category which is inevitably constructive deserves more than cursory attention.

For the benefit of those of us who are Zionists, it is unfortunate that the figures were not broken down to show how much money was spent to transport immigrants to Palestine alone, but even as is, the one complaint upon which the J. D. C. has been called down most often is now obviously no longer tenable.

Mourning Over Jabotinsky Reveals Palestine's Place

THOSE who would interpret the spontaneous outpouring of grief over the sudden death of Vladimir Jabotinsky, extremist Zionist leader, as a sportsmanlike gesture motivated more by common decency than any real feeling fail to understand the change that has come about in the viewpoint of world Jewry in the past decade and in the past few years especially.

To many American Jews Jabotinsky is the foreign-sounding name of a man who had something to do with Palestine. Neither the policies he advocated nor the organization he headed were any more familiar to them than that.

The grief over the loss of the Revisionist leader is a clear indication that the main stream of Jewish history has already attached itself to a Jewish Palestine and the destiny of that land. Historians of the future will place this change somewhere in the past ten years, and everything that goes on in American Jewry and Jewries of other lands will be interpreted in the light of how these activities affected Palestine as the Jewish national home, in much the same manner as the history of the nations of the world during Napoleon's ascendancy is interpreted in the light of what happened to Napoleon.

Current Comment

Perturbed by Inactivity of General Jewish Council, Jewish National Workers Alliance Says—The convention is greatly perturbed by the inactivity of the General Jewish Council, organized in 1938. We regard with great anxiety the fact that even now, in the face of the bitterly tragic situation of world Jewry and the menaces that threaten us here in America, it has not been possible to make of the General Jewish Council the virile, active, central body so sorely needed in American Jewish life.

In this inactivity of the General Jewish Council we see inherent the danger that American Jewry may not be united in time for the fight against anti-Semitism in this country and for the presentation of Jewish demands before the international peace tribunals at the close of the present war.

Nor can the convention regard otherwise than with deep dismay the report that a certain body of the General Jewish Council has introduced a project for the transference of the conduct of central Jewish activities and the struggle for Jewish rights into the hands of a small group of individuals who shall not be responsible for their actions to or be subject to the control of any Jewish public body.

The convention regards such proposals as an attempt to entrench in Jewish public life the rule of a plutocratic leadership and at the same time to blunt the initiative and militancy of the Jewish masses.

The convention instructs our representatives in the American Jewish Congress to register with it our emphatic protest against this attempt to foist a plutocratic rule on Jewish life in America. We instruct them further to take the initiative, if necessary, to organize all forces represented in the congress against the participation of the congress in any body beyond the reach of public control.

Why Refer to a Jewish Leader, The American Jewish Outlook Asks—A number of Democrats have indicated that they are opposed to a third term. Among them are such names as Lewis Douglas, former director of the budget; John W. Hanes, former undersecretary of the treasury; former Senator Burke of Nebraska; President Charles Seymour of Yale University, and so on.

In each instance the daily papers reported the news together with a statement from the man concerned. But when former Supreme Court Justice Proskauer announces that he is leaving the Democratic party, the newspapers featured his announcement in terms of "a prominent Jewish leader" and pointed out that he was the former president of the New York Men's Hebrew Association and the New York Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies. The papers pointed out that he was "the first prominent member of his faith to declare for the Republican nominee."

Now what has Proskauer's faith got to do with his decision? Why are we not told the faith of Douglas, or Hanes, or Burke, or Seymour? Why bring in the Jewish Federation or the Young Men's Hebrew Association? Proskauer acted as an individual, not as a judge or a Jew or as a president of a "Y" in New York. Any attempt to draw any other conclusion is vicious and unfounded. One wonders why the newspapers had to bring in Proskauer's religion. It does not belong in the discussion.

Freedom of the Press

Seeks Affidavit Through Paper To the Editor:

I beg to apply to you in my letter of today, with the following request, and I beg you not to mind it and to help me as far as possible.

I ran, in Germany since 1926, a leather wholesale business, and the importance of it as well as my personal fame in this line was a very considerable one. Owing to the government's action in November, 1938, my business as well as my dwelling were entirely destroyed and plundered, and I lost my rather considerable fortune. Alas! there remained no other opening for emigration for myself and my family than to go to Shanghai. So we landed here about one year ago.

As you will see from the declarations in the end of this letter, it concerns still young people. Especially my wife and children are here facing the greatest dangers, owing to the climate, and they could not stand a long living in Shanghai. Especially as my children are in the age of growing, and because of the lack of right food are very underfed.

In addition to this fact, it is quite impossible to start an existence by the small means that are at my disposal, and that as an immigrant one cannot secure a footing in China altogether. My knowledge of my business lines and my commercial experience of 21 years cannot help me here, and thus there is for me no other possibility than to emigrate from China as soon as possible, especially as the future of my family and the creation of a new existence are my heart's desire.

I am registered with the American Consulate in Berlin and my turn will be in about half a year. Despite all endeavors, it was not yet possible to get an affidavit for which reason I apply to you, with the request to befriend me, and perhaps with the help of an appeal in your paper, to find a person that is willing to sign an affidavit for me and my family. The person in question can be sure that he will not have to fear the least apprehension and that this affidavit will oblige him in any way. It is but to enable me to obtain my immigration, and I do not insist on New York, for I should go to any small city in America. We are all of German nationality, with German passports; but owing to my birthplace, we are not counted for the Polish quota. Simultaneously, I add a certificate of reputation issued by the Jewish Community in Berlin on the day before my leaving.

I beg you to try all you can in getting an affidavit, and I hope you will not disregard my request.

You may be sure that I would never forget your help, and that I would consider it my duty to help other fellow believers as soon as I am in America.

With the hope soon to hear from you, I am,

Yours sincerely,

MAX KALENSCHER.
